

Capzantine supports Leyton

09/2006

CTR Leyton, operational consultants specialising in cost reductions for public and private sector employers, launches an OBO with the support of Natexis Industrie and Capzantine.

Based in St Cloud, Lyon and Toulouse, the company advises employers on how to minimise their social security costs, and has just launched two new solutions, one covering Industrial Accidents and the other Research Tax Credit. CTR Leyton relies on its technical expertise, commercial energy and capacity for innovation to drive sustained growth in its activity.

The deal was structured by Natexis Industrie, with Capzantine arranging the mezzanine financing; bank financing was arranged by BESV in conjunction with CIC. The new financial partners are keen to contribute to the company's expansion, in particular through organic growth (expanding the product range, opening new regional offices) and possible external growth opportunities.

CTR Leyton reported net sales of €8.5 M in 2006 (year to 30 June), and employs around fifty people.
